
If S is ever marked differently than A in indexing or flagging (i.e. if <yes> to either Align.09 or Align.10), are S arguments of one predicate class coded identically to A arguments of the default transitive class, and S arguments of another predicate class coded identically to P arguments of the default transitive class (Split−S)?

- no
- yes