

If the language has glottalized resonants, does it have a phonemic distinction between glottalized and non–glottalized liquids?

